FROM THE NURSE...

Spring has finally arrived, and with that, so have allergies. If your child takes allergy medicine each year, please be on alert for symptoms so that you may start his/her daily dose. Additionally, if your child is bothered by itchy, red eyes, please administer their eye drops before they leave for school. The pollen is very high in the morning, and they will suffer throughout the day once a reaction to pollen has begun. If you find that he/she needs eye drops administered at school, please download the "Request for Medication at School" form at www.d-e.org/enroll . Remember, a physician permission/signature, as well as your own signature, is required for me to administer any medication in school.

We ask families to note that The Lion King Jr. does include a few moments which might be frightening for our very youngest community members. The most notable is the death of Simba's father, Mufasa. While potentially frightening, this is but a brief moment in a beautiful story, and the overall message of The Lion King Jr. is one of home, love and family.
