Social Media, Extremism, and Our Youth: A Conversation with Parents

by Andrew Marantz

Monday, May 10, 7-8:30 PM

A Zoom Parent Ed. Evening Event

Note: Zoom link provided after RSVP is received.

Andrew Marantz traces how the unthinkable becomes reality: how alienated young people are easy prey, led down the rabbit hole of online radicalization; and how fringe ideas spread from festering in anonymous corners of the web, to being broadcast on cable TV.

What can we do to keep away “the gate crashers”—the white supremacists, conspiracists, and nihilist trolls who expertly use the internet to advance their poisonous agenda?

Join in this free virtual discussion about a relevant and timely topic, for parents with children of all ages!

About Andrew Marantz

New Yorker staff writer and a TED 2019 speaker Andrew Marantz is the author of the book Antisocial: Online Extremists, Techno-Utopians, and the Hijacking of the American Conversation. It was named to both the New York Times Critics' Top Books of 2019, and their 100 Notable Books of 2019, as well as Fast Company's list of books on technology you should read in 2020.

Marantz has worked at The New Yorker since 2011, first as an editor and then as a writer. He has covered a wide array of subjects. Ultimately, his main interest lies not in any particular subject but in how people form beliefs, and under what circumstances those beliefs can change for the better. Marantz is also a contributor to Radiolab and The New Yorker Radio Hour, and he has written for Harper's, Mother Jones, the New York Times, and has been interviewed on CNN, MSNBC, and NPR.

Marantz holds an undergraduate degree in religion from Brown University and a master's degree in literary nonfiction from New York University.

D-E 360° Summer 2021

Serving Students in Preschool – Grade 12

In-Person on the Campus of Dwight-Englewood School July 6 to August 13, 2021

Welcome! Count on us for a summer of BOLD learning with our D-E 360° Summer Connections programs scheduled to run from July 6 through August 13. Understanding fully the needs of young people from both social-emotional and academic perspectives, we're offering in-person programs for learners at all ages for six weeks this summer. Participants may join us for two, four, or all six weeks.

We have a range of experiences planned that include art and design, theater, music and movement, environmental conservation and STEM leadership, academic and life skills building as well as more traditional "camp" programs.

After a summer of virtual programs in 2020, we are excited to welcome back faculty, staff and trusted partners to join us IN PERSON on campus for Summer Connections 2021.
